Headline:
Sunny spells and showers, cloudier later in north.

Today:
A largely bright day with sunny spells and occasional showers, still a few heavy ones around especially through the afternoon, especially across southern and eastern Aberdeenshire. Becoming cloudier along the Moray Firth coast with outbreaks of rain later. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Some heavy showers at first in southeast, but cloud and outbreaks of rain across the north spreading south this evening and overnight. Drier, clearer conditions reach the north later. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Wednesday:
Cloudy start across southern Aberdeenshire with patchy rain, otherwise a bright day with some sunny spells and a few mainly light showers. Feeling rather cool in the northerly breeze. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Bright start Thursday but cloud and outbreaks of rain spreading northeast with strengthening easterly winds. Cloudy with further occasionally heavy rain Friday. Sunny spells and showers through Saturday.
